Terry Heiney - The Learning Network, USA

"Although we have worked on a number of projects through the years, a job commLab completed for us last summer is really representative of their work. A trade association client needed an existing online course edited for content and re-programmed for delivery on CD-ROM. The course was lengthy and the time line compressed. We called on CommLab to help. They met and exceeded our expectations.

The edited course included added Flash elements that increased interest and production value. CommLab recommended and developed these on its own initiative. The programming was completed flawlessly and served as a model for us in other offline courses. The project was actually completed ahead of schedule.

The cost was considerably less than we would have paid for onshore contractors. In short, a great job was delivered on time at a good price with great customer service. We communicated every day via email and always knew the progress on the project. And, this is typical of the way we have worked with Commlab through the years. I cannot recommend them highly enough."
